

A gift for the future

By Syd Grover, member of The Benevolent Circle

I first came into contact with The Benevolent Society over 45 years ago when my wife and I decided to adopt a child. Through the Society we adopted our daughter and then two years later our son. Our family has developed over the years; we have raised our children and now we have grandchildren. Ever since then I have felt a strong bond with The Benevolent Society.

I make annual donations to the Society and recently I have included The Benevolent Society in my Will. I have done so because the Society is well managed and I am certain that the funds I leave will be put to good and proper use.

As a member of The Benevolent Circle I have enjoyed meeting others that have also pledged a bequest to the Society, and we have been invited to visit program sites and attend special events, which helps me to understand how The Benevolent Society is helping the community.

Today's world is very different from when I first heard of The Benevolent Society. Times continue to change for the Society and I know that they will always seek to find innovative ways to meet the needs of the people it cares for. This gives me faith that my bequest will make a difference to the lives of individuals and families in the future.
